PHILANTHROPY: PALLIATIVE OR PROHYLACTIC?

RABBI MAURICE N. EISENDRATH

Rabbi Brickner, in addressing the Council of Jewish Women at the Community House last week, most justifiably commended the ladies of our local Council for the splendid program which they are sponsoring, particularly this year — and quite correctly he stressed the fact that their labors in behalf of the handicapped and less fortunate girls of the community were perhaps one of the finest bits of constructive philanthropy possible. He recounted the strenuous struggle necessary to convince a generation, which had identified charity with sheer almsgiving and palliation that more preventative methods of relief were vitally imperative for any manner of decent social progress. So, through the wisdom and vision of the few, the Boys' Club and the Girls' Club came into being, and more and more their splendid achievements have won converts to the cause of prophylactic philanthropy.

It now appears, however, as though all these tediously won victories are being threatened, and that if the disease of retrenchments sets in it will attack first these precious prizes of a decade or so of painstaking toil. We have heard rumors here and there to the effect that due to the failure of the Federation Drive, the philanthropic budget may have to be curtailed, and inasmuch as people cannot be left to starve or freeze, inasmuch as almsgiving cannot possibly be dispensed with, we will perhaps be forced rather to limit or to terminate some of these "extra palliative" programs. Nothing would be more suicidal than this. Years upon years of patient planning and pioneering effort would thus be scrapped, and it would take not one year of "good times," but another decade to undo the harm which such a drastic step would bring in its wake. Personally, we are of the opinion that such people who would discard these preventative institutions first, are beginning at the wrong end, and the merely proving that despite the establishment of these various clubs, we have not yet really revised our social thinking. People generally yet believe that direct relief rather than indirect prevention is the first and foremost obligation. We are inclined to reverse the order. Not that we are so callous and hardened to the plight of the poor as to heed not their distressing cry. Would that others were as sensitive. But we feel that such persons are the concern primarily of the commonwealth in which they live. No nation could dare to let its people starve. But it could, with impunity, permit its privately operated institutions of prevention languish and close. It is therefore most necessary that the various groups who sustain these agencies of social progress keep them open and running at their very highest efficiency, regardless of the cost. We cannot afford so to gamble with the future as to retrench in any of these endeavors.

And besides, instead of retrenching in these particular realms, it is highly important that we even expand their programs and improve their facilities. Our institutions, splendid as may be their achievement, are far from adequate, nor are they commensurate with our needs. It is dangerous not merely to retrench, but to stand still as well. How vividly our own shortcoming was borne into our mind this summer when, while at Los Angeles, we visited Vista del Mar. Vista del Mar, View of the Sea, was the name of this particular place we visited high above the Pacific, situated in the midst of a beautifully wooded estate. Who would have suspected as we drove up to that delightful little settlement composed of almost a dozen artistically and picturesquely situated homes that this was an Orphanage that we were being shown. Each individual house, modern throughout, simply but artistically furnished, each containing a lovely living room, dining room, kitchen, library and the most excellent of sanitary conveniences, each presided over by a "mother" and each accommodating but about eight children. A real home indeed. With a separate building for a real synagogue; an eight bed hospital; and a preventorium for pre-tubercular and mal-nourished girls. Such is in truth a children's home as might be the envy of any community. And I remembered as I visited this exemplary institution, how heroically we struggle on with our wholly inadequate Old People's and Children's Homes. It is a miracle how efficiently and splendidly they are managed and yet how far from the ideal advanced by modern sociological thought they really are. How, then, can we even dream of undoing what we have already done, when there is so much still to be achieved. Would that anyone interested in little, helpless and orphaned children, in boys' or girls' clubs, might have visited the glorious Vista del Mar (not the Los Angeles "Children's Home," but Vista del Mar), and have viewed there the splendid vision of Mr. Joseph Bonapart, its superintendent, so happily come true; then, we feel sure, shame would have consumed us all for the little we have thus far done. We are a large Jewish community, and some of us have attained, personally at least, to that standard of living which places us in the category of the wealthy. Why, then, have we not a single institution—Boys' Club, Girls' Club (a valuable asset, but surely not wholly adequate even now) Children's Home, Old People's Home, or even Synagogue, to which we can point with pride as the finest example of its class, one worthy of emulation by other communities.

How dare we even breathe a single suggestion of retreat! We must face about and forward march! We have as yet far to go and it is about time that we were on the way to even more exemplary achievement. Sacrifice is needed—and vision. These things will yet prove more feasible than the mere bestowal of alms. Prevention rather than palliation. Let us come to grips with our task and build better mansions for our poor.

COMMENTARIES

By Rabbi Harry J. Stern, of Montreal,
Associate Contributing Editor

HOW MUCH LAND DOES A MAN NEED?

The great Russian writer, Tolstoi, deals with the above important question in one of his Legends. Pakhom was a peasant who had enough material possessions to make him comfortable. He was satisfied. But one day he visited a richer relative in the city and envy made Pakhom dissatisfied. He felt that his few acres of land were no longer enough. He wanted more. So that with the selling of half of his bees and a colt, and with putting his son out as a laborer, he succeeded in buying some more acres of land. Pakhom prospered. He was delighted. He thought he knew how much land a man needs. But soon the report spread that people were moving to the Volga district where there were rich fertile acres to be obtained for the asking. Pakhom argued — why remain here? Why not increase my material possessions and obtain prominence? And so he moved to the new place. He now knew how much land a man needs. But again rumors reached Pakhom of rich land in the territory of the wandering Bashkirs which could be had for a song. So he took all his available money and travelled five hundred versts to the land of the Bashkirs. There he was welcomed and told he could have all the land he wanted. The price was one thousand rubels a day—all the land that a man could go round in a day was his for one thousand rubels. There was only one condition. If he failed to come back within the day, to the place from which he started,—his money was lost. Pakhom was delighted and most happy. He knew that with his sturdy legs he could cover a great number of acres in a day. Thus early at dawn, he arose and, with the Bashirs looking on,—he set out upon the steppes. He walked and halted and rejoiced at his lot. Oft he paused to look back at the great distance already covered. But he felt it was too early, as yet, to turn around. In front of him—he saw rich black soil. No he cannot turn back in the face of soil covered with green grass. So he continued. The further he went — the better the land became. Soon, however weariness overtook him. He thought of retracing his steps—but no—he must not forego the land ahead. So he endured! Soon the sun was setting in the west. He must now hurry back to the starting point— now ten miles away. But weakness took hold of him. He felt a desire to pause and rest—but he dared not. His money was at stake. Pakhom took to the circle quick when he noticed the sun was sinking lower and lower. He threw away his boots. He hurried on, staggering. His mouth was parched. His heart was pounding most rapidly. But he could not stop! He ran and ran. He could now see the starting point! The Bashkirs were waiting! He exerted his last energies—he reached out his arms to the starting point—and collapsed—a stream of blood poured out of his mouth—he lay dead. One of the Bashkirs took a hoe, dug a grave wide it just long enough from head to foot—seven feet and buried him. And this was all the land the man needed.

STAGING DEBATES ON RELIGION

I notice that debates between agnostics, Rabbis and Christian Clergy have become quite the fashion. These "staged affairs" are no doubt highly entertaining — since such provide ample "circus atmosphere." Reverently speaking, however, these are of no value. And the pity of it all is these debates are, essentially, most often arranged for commercial purposes. Rabbis have enough to do to teach Judaism to Jews without going on "world boxing-tours" with priests of agnosticism.

FAIR WEATHER OR STORMS?

The conformist is ever a "yes yes" man. He must even break with intellectual honesty for the fear lest he antagonize and become a disfavored one. His life, by choice, will be filled with fair weather!

The non-conformist does not agree when truth is at stake. He dares take a stand. He dares to criticize. He dares to call a halt to practices that tend to weaken life. He speaks frankly, even at the price of popularity.

He does not pander to popular taste. He does not seek the shallow gratification of the market place. He visions not this world but the world that ought to be. His life by choice is filled with storms.

"Write on your doors the saying wise and old
Be bold! Be bold! And everywhere be bold!
Be not too bold'—but better the excess,
Than the defect, better the more than less,
Better, like Hector, on the field to die
Than like a perfumed Paris, turn and fly."

Y.M.H.A. Water Polo House League. The Y.M.H.A.'s Water Polo House League completed its 1934 season last Sunday morning when the Reds, captained by Harry Shorr won the doubles contest in the last game of the season. Thirty games were played in six teams in a period of ten Sundays and not till the last whistle was sounded was the issue decided. This ends the second season of Canada's largest water polo house league. The winning team was composed of Harry Shorr (captain), Hy. Archel, M. Furgeon, J. Goodman, H. Litwin, N. Mervis, H. Schulman, B. Smilovitch, and A. Schnier. The award to the most valuable player in the league in the fullness to his team was won by B. Smilovitch, who aided in the scoring, passing, and had the least penalties. The final league standing:—

	W.	L.	D.	F.	A.	P.
Reds	7	1	2	46	24	16
Browns	6	2	2	29	26	14

Blues	4	4	2	32	34	10
Whites	2	7	1	20	34	5
Greens	0	8	2	13	31	2

The Y.M.H.A. City League [illegible] will lead the pack. Playing [illegible] first year in competition, the Blues and the Whites have yet to be defeated in competition. Coach Morrie Braker is assured of nothing short of a second and either a first or third. If the Blues win all their games and the Whites take the balance of the schedule, the Y.M.H.A. will have their first Championship Water Polo squad. The packed gallery at their games has inspired the boys to put all in their games. A added attraction at all games is the playing of the Harmonica Orchestra during intermissions and before the games. A special evening of water races will be featured on Dec. 5th in the "Y" pool when the McGill Water Polo Team will play against the Blues in their final game of the season. Coach Morrie Braker will pit against him on the McGill team Marcus Stein, who is making a name for himself in the glorious McGill. The City League standing to date:

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without cancer,
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

As Rabbi Brickner pointed out in a burning article recently in the Review, the campaign of the Toronto Federation netted less than half the objective of $125,000. The Jewish community won the prize for reducing subscriptions, with the Protestant and the Catholic drive last year having done nearly as well as it. As you read this the Montreal Federation campaign is just about over but the results are not all in. The campaign can hardly fail although doubtless many subscriptions have been lopped off considerably.

It is easy to imagine what must a pre-Federation meeting of men is like. They must degenerate into a period of meditation and prayer in which each tried to see how much they can cut their subscriptions without arousing too much ire and in which they pray that the amount may be pretty. Some men must appeal to their fellows in their trusts, most unflattering scenes. It must be fascinating to watch benevolence crowd by miserly, to observe the stern sheriff of some, the abysmal indifference of others. Does a man ever sit at night after the day has worked on him for days "Outright Pledge Cash" $5,000." It must be a thrill. Anyway, you can't see it in the papers.

One thing apparent about Federation campaigns is that the world-mental appeal is weakening the drive that must result in bringing about the day when the law will observe the day. The theme song, "The Jew Takes Care of His Own," does not sound with much conviction when a Federation fails to achieve half its necessary budget. The Jew is not taking care of his own if these Shall. His own must serve or be a public charge. Slogans, house talks, luncheons, and rallies and all the sentimental devices will be no substitute and what can take their place except some form of taxation?

Just now the attitude of numerous cities in Canada and the States seems to be "We will cut out this and let everything else go." It is a bad time to organized social service. The tide sets back to the dead days, meanwhile benign need, which I was the instrument to expose people to appeal in person and now their cries. They begged bread and were given rock. If people are again going to be given the old rock what will be disastrous results to the life of every Jewish community.

How about family welfare, illness, dependencies, delinquency and relevant problems. The Jewish citizen who pays, to solve relevant problems knows these records of what life at the right cost of the community are. Things that must be neglected if the pay are to be served on it go it that. How about such activities, work as vocational guidance and training. Where teachers apply it most Jewish communities I would love to be stationed where people get nothing but rock and stones. Vocational guidance keeps girls and especially boys out of blind-alley occupations that compel to skill and lead to nothing. Without it boys grow up, many of the boys that live, into eight and five as cheaply as on and this each becomes for the charge but several on the community. How about hospitalization. How about the condition of small Jewish business men. Due it not to the plan when the economic status of these Jewish grocers and storekeepers grows more and more precarious. It is a moment to think about it connection with free loan funds. The assume responsibility of preventive programs of social service vital agencies the ability to participate in common action, a prime factor in the upbuilding of a wholesome Jewish life. Thus the existence of a Federation is a actual benefit to those who take part collectively in its maintenance. To a Federation one owes to an agency for doing any detail the little most would be a harm to the whole structure of the community. Neither a economic depression could be the excuse for a retrogression in this structure which would take years to mend and years to say to be a mutual intangible value.

It is to be hoped that at last a pledge is a pledge and that it will not be necessary to institute such rotten procedure as campaigns to collect pledges. Sweet Harry a many a Jewish community has certain ways of handling the little fellows among the givers. What the little fellows need is a way of handling the big fellows. A man may keep business from another man whose pledge looks thin. The only come-back the lesser lights have is through the ballot. A good example of what can be done with it occurred not long ago in a certain city in Canada where a man refused to sign the mortgage of an institution. At election time the position of prestige to which he was accustomed was with-held. Perhaps organizations are beginning to learn that the desirable honors they have to dispense are often bought too cheaply by people unworthy in the giving and ungrateful at the end.

This Tarnia tub, C339-FT, fills the first test of good bath-tub design.

"I am a lady . . . I washed my hands but a fortnight ago"

Simpered Marie de Medici, Queen of France, to a courtier who remarked the beauty of her hands, "I am a lady, I washed them but a fortnight ago." Perhaps it was to this gesture, however empty and ludicrous, that we owe today's acceptance of cleanliness as the first requisite of graciousness.

For it was just about 400 years ago the public turned to bathing as a measure of comfort and of safeguarding health. Then the first crude attempts were made to devise sanitary appointments. Attempts that have reached their present high state of excellence in Crane plumbing materials.

Worthy is this Tarnia bath to represent this ultimate cleanliness in your home, and to symbolize ultimate progress among fixture makers.

Not because it is the most sumptuous of appointments, or the most expensive, but because it translates in terms of beauty and utility the greatest bath comfort at the most moderate price.

In appearance it is unpretentious, yet dignified. Its trough is of glistening enamel ware. Its flat and conveniently ample shelf is made to crown whatever tiling the decorative scheme of your bathroom calls for.

To see this and other modern Crane plumbing appointments visit the nearby Crane Exhibit Rooms. There, you can visualize the bathroom or kitchen of the home whose comfort you have always dreamed of.

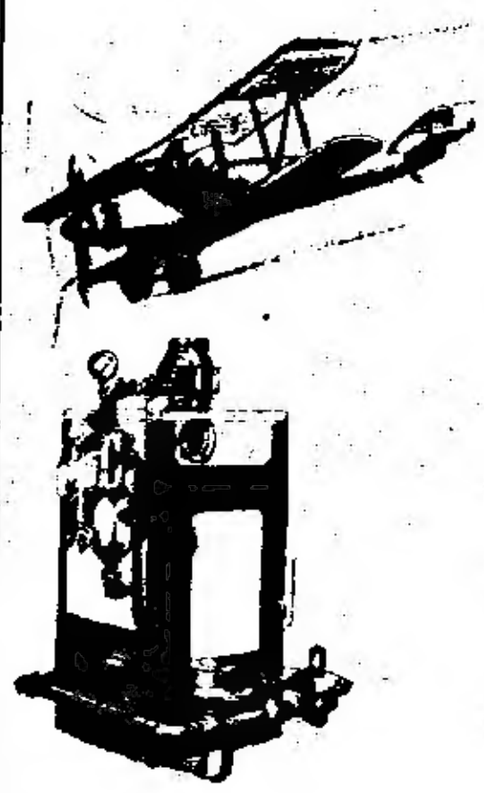
Here's Heating Service in Step with the Times



Send for the booklet "Always Summer".

The gas-fired furnace, warm water, warm air, or steam, is the master of modern heating efficiency. Burning gas—the clean fuel—noiselessly and automatically, it is the last word in care-free, wasteless heating service.

It sets the standard for all other forms of heating. These others must measure as near to gas as they can in advertising and selling claims, "almost" noiseless, for one kind, "almost" dustless for another. There is no "almost" in gas heating.

Even in the question of ULTIMATE cost, gas fuel will stand favourable comparison. Ask us about that.
